CGT Marketing Solutions for the Next Wave

Why Cell & Gene Therapy Suppliers Should Consider Outsourcing Their Marketing

The cell and gene therapy industry operates in a fast-paced environment defined by rapidly evolving technologies and regulatory landscapes. CGT marketing requires communicating complex technical information to a scientifically-literate audience—a task that poses a significant challenge for CGT suppliers aiming to craft effective campaigns.

In today's economy, capital allocation for in-house marketing resources may be limited, which further compounds these challenges. It can be difficult for small and emerging CGT companies to fund a full in-house marketing team with competitive salaries. The specialized nature of the CGT industry makes it hard to find individuals with the right combination of scientific understanding and marketing expertise. In this fiercely competitive arena, a misstep in your marketing strategy not only risks under-performance but also jeopardizes your ROI.

What is Outsourced Marketing?

Outsourced marketing involves collaborating with an external partner to handle various aspects of marketing strategy and execution. Outsourcing can be a strategic solution to achieve targeted and effective marketing in an intensely competitive environment that demands a highly scientific and diverse skill set to succeed.

Why Outsource Your Marketing

Access to Specialized Expertise and Talent

Having a team already well-versed in the technical and scientific aspects of CGT ensures that your message authentically resonates with the intended audience in a fast-paced and evolving field.

Resource Allocation

Access to a full marketing team of specialists in content creation, digital marketing, and strategy, that can operate without the need for day-to-day management frees up internal resources for strategic allocation.

Competitive Advantage

Outsourcing provides a competitive advantage for small companies with limited capital to execute faster and maximize ROI, especially since speed to market for CGT is crucial.

Flexibility and Scalability

Companies who outsource can swiftly scale up or down as needs ebb and flow within the dynamic landscape of CGT to effectively deliver when needed and adapt to evolving demands in a risk-mitigated way.

Cost Effective

Outsourcing offers a more cost-effective solution than attempting to build up a brand-new marketing team. This allows companies to access the specialized expertise of highly educated personnel without the burdens of maintaining an in-house team.

Risk Mitigation

A dedicated and stable external team minimizes the potential disruptions caused by internal employee turnover, ensuring long-term continuity and consistency.
